FUNERAL SERMON

Of Miss Bertha Gibson, Delivered at Hartford Baptist Church, May 10, 1882,

BY REV. DR. J. S. COLEMAN.

Text-"Why make ye this ado and weep? The damsel is not dead but sleepeth." Mark 5:27.

The prominence of the word death in the prominence of the word death in the vocabulary of revelation can not be exagerated. Next to life, the most pregnant symbol in Religion, is its antithesis, which is death. From the time it was said by the Almighty "if thou eatest thereof thou shalt surely die" and it was heard in Paradise. in the vocabulary of revelation can not be exagerated. Next to life, the most pregnant symbol in Religion, is its antithesis, which is death. From the time it was said by the Almighty "If thou eatest thereof thou shalt surely die" and it was heard in Paradise, this solemn word has been linked with human interests of eternal moment, hence that question in religion, which takes precedence of any other, the existence of God accepted and the one which gives character and importance to them all, is the question entailed with unabated interest on each succeeding generation which is: "If a man dies shall he live again?" "Is man only mortal, or has est on each succeeding generation which is: "If a man dies shall he live again?" "Is man only mortal, or has he an existence atter death?" Men have generally anticipated a future existence, as harmonizing with their desires and wants. The instinctive horror with which the soul recoils from the thought of annihilation ts ardent longing after a perpetuity of life and happiness, its thirst for bliss and the incapacity of all earthly things to satiate or satisfy its wants are so many steps by which man has emerged from the gloom of the sepulchers ascended the throne and in hope seized the crown of immortality. If there is not a state after death where our instinctive desires may be realized, then is life a cheat and religion a deceptive myth. But we are not left in doubt, Christ has brought this doctrine out from the mists of conjecture and misconstruction of the old Jewish Mythology and emblazoned it with new luster in demonstrative Christianity. He not only demonstrates man's immateriality, but, also, the resurrection of the body by calling the slumbering dead to hife again. The resurrection of Christ from the dead is made the christians guarantee that his body also shall be renimated.

Is then we cherish of one day meeting them where death shall be swallowed up in victory; when this corruptable shall put on incorruption and thus mortal aput on incorruption and thus mortal put on incorruption.

But, most of all, death like sleep will not incorruption and thus mortal put on incorruption.

rection of Christ from the dead is made the christians guarantee that his body also shall be renimated and prepared as a fit vehicle in which to enjoy the eternal state.

Death is, therefore, spoken of in the soft and tranquilizing term sleep. The gospel, therefore, lights a torch which irradiates the dark shadows of the valley of death and Christ course to the first fair.

him out of sleep."
The sainted dead are said to have fallen "asleep" in Jesus Christ and in the last day will descend with the souls of them that "sleep" in Christ. This expression was common with the Heathens of ancient times, but it was to quell their superstitious dread of the visitations of their dead friends of which they stood in awfulfear. But Christ used the term as indicative of a temporary state; hence he says in the text: "The damsel is not dead, but sleepeth."

sleep.
Death, like sleep, is not the destruction of the living principal, but only a temporary change in the mode of its opperation. Hence, the body may suffer death but the living principal still exists.

In proof of this fact Christ assigned the dying thief a place in Paradise, while death held his cold body on the cross. Hence, the ad-

It is, therefore, my present purpose to trace those points of similarity in which death may be likened to a body on the cress. Hence, the admonition of Christ to fear not them which killed the body, but have no more they can do &c. This is the change, the living principal hereto-fore acted through corporal organism, but now it acts independently, and without the cumbersome clay.

Death, like steep, is a state of rest, discharging the Christian from all the perplexing cares and concerns of mor-tal life. As sleep releases us from the concerns and toils of the day, so death releases the Christian from the the toils and cares of life. Paul thus regarded it when he said: "There remaineth therefore a rest unto the people of God." As the weary Pil-grim plods his tedious journey, well may he ask—

'Oh! where shall rest be found, Rest for the weary soul?
Twere vain the ocean depths to sound, Or pierce to either pole.

The world can never give The bliss for which we sigh,
Tis not the whole of life to live,
Nor all of death to die."

Beyond this vale of tears, There is a life above, Inmeasured by the flight of years, And all that life is love."

Asleep in Jesus! Blessed sleep! From which none ever wake to weep A calm and undisturbed repose, Unbroken by the last of foes. -Mrs. McKay.

"For we, that are in this tabernacle do groan, being burdened, not for that we would be unclothed, but clothed upon that mortality, might be swallowed up of life." We are confident and willing rather to be absent from the body, and to be present with the Lord. At death, we throw off this heavy clog of mortal pain, and rise to the throne above, where we are prepared to bathe in the sun-light of an eternal day, and see God without a dimming veil between. The liberated spirit, like the uncaged eagle, fixes its eye upon the splendors of the sun of righteousness, and as it speeds its upward flight; cries with immortal joy: Oh! death, where is thy sting? Oh! grave, where is thy victory? Oh! who would not steep in death to rest in God?." Who would not exchange mortality for immortal-

Then as we lay the dear loved one in the silent grave this evening let us say, "sweet and quiet be thy rest, for thou art not dead, but sleepeth," while we, her survivors join in saying,

"Oh sing to me of heaven, When I am called to die; Sing songs of holy ecstacy, To waft my soul on high."

"When cold and sluggish drops, Roll off my marble brow; Burst forth in strains of joyfullness, Let neaven begin below.

"Then to my ravished ears, Let one sweet song be given Let music charm me last on earth, And greet me first in Heaven."

Mrs. Million's Ride.

When Mrs. Million goes to ride she travels forth in state. Her horses, full of fire and pride, go prancing from the gate. But all the beauties of the day she views with languid eye, Her flesh in weakness wastes away, her voice is but a sigh.

For Mrs. Million is in an advanced tage of catarrh, and all the luxuries that wealth can buy fail to give her comfort. She envies her rosy waiting-maid, and would give all her riches for that young woman's pure breath and blooming health. Now if some true and disinterested friend would advise Mrs. Million of the wonderful merits of Dr. Sage's Catarch Remedy, she would learn that her case is not past help. $5(k) re-ward is offered by the manufacturers for a case of catarrh in the head which they cannot cure.

Last Saturday was the day set apart for the meeting of the "unterrified" and unwashed in Mass Convention to select delegates to the State Convention, which meets in Louisville the 25th. About a handful of them gathered into the bar of the CourtHouse-they had to get close together to keep their spirits up-and proceeded after organization to the paintul operation of listening to a political harange from the tireless haranguer, J. Edwin Rowe.

A set of resolutions, long as a National platform, was adopted, in which as usual they "turn with pride" to the four years when the Democracy beyour "sweetheart" ready, and waiting gan to grow fat in the offices, and the people were cured of their desire for a change in the National Administration. A few soft words are thrown of giving very much advice in regard to the great Grover, but it's not said whether the delegates shall vote in harmony with the soft words or not. The principle of protection was at-tacked with all the virulence that could be expected from the disciples of Cobden and the Free Silver question was carefully straddled.

A Beautiful Tribute to a Beautiful Life.

"All is over, funeral to-morrow evening,"—and memory went back ten years to a morning in June, when a pleasant faced girl timidly applied for a situation in my store.

As the startling message lay before of entertainment during Circuit me, it seemed to recall every step of the bright girl's progress. Now little by little the burdens and cares of the business were removed from menow from a pupil she became counsellor and adviser-now, before I was aware of it, I came to depend upon her, until imperceptibly all the financial management of the business had rolled from mine, onto the shoulders of the young girl.

Is it any wonder that the message filled my heart with such deep, deep sorrow? Is it any wonder that it is so hard to realize that I will never see, and talk with her again, that we will never bend over the same ledger or discuss questions of business together again? Yes, it is even so, the ac-counts are all balanced—the books are closed -the tired pen is laid aside -and Bertha is at rest. What a remarkable woman she was-what wonderful intellect-what keen perceptions—what indomitable energy. Of all the girls or boys—of all the women or men, who held positions with me, in the course of a thirty years business, she stood, in every respect, head and shoulders above them all. As for her goodness of heart and purity of character, nothing, that the most gifted might write or say, could add to the beauty that gathers about her name. Above all, she was a Christian with a simple trusting faith that never wavered. As the years shall roll on, and little girls shall grow to womanhood in the dear old town where her beautiful life's story was written, fathers and mothers, in the nurseries and around their hearth-stones, will gather their little ones together, to repeat the story, and hold up, as the mightiest model of emulation, the life and character of Bertha Gibson, one of the strongest—the purest and best that ever graced her native town. Ay, when other names shall have been the best men in the county. His forgotten, towns, people, yet unborn, place in the community will be hard with pride will say to the passing with pride will say to the passing stranger: Here Bertha Gibson was born, here her beautiful life was spent, and here her ashes sleep, and there is one of whom, the proudest thing that men may say of him will be, that one-third of the life of this lovely girl was spent in intimate associa-tion with him. BASE BALL --- MEAN WHISKY.

Facts About a Much-Talked of Fight at Calhoon.

May 9,-As you will doubtless get garbled account of the little scrape that took place on the J. C. Kerr Saturday night, I will give you the tacts in the case.

A. Hudson, John and Dan King, of Hartford, and some other men trom Livermore, Rockport, Paradise and Rochester got up a game of base ball with Calhoon first pine. Clarence Erwin was umpire and made several errors in favor of the Calhoon boys, which got up a few words between him and Hudson. The river boys led by a score the first inning, and after two innings, by Erwin's decision and changing players, they stood 6 to 11. Then Ally Westerfield, from Rochester, was called in and umpired the game to the satisfaction of all parties, but the Calhoon boys.

Calhoon played6 innings, 24 scores, while the river boys 5 innings and 15 scores, white-washing the Calhoon boys 4 times. Archie Caip, of Hartford. and Bill Tanner got up a few words when Tanner ran and got a bat and drew his knife and started towards Cain, who was lying down. Hudson then gave Cain a bat and got one himself telling Cain to make him hit him. Tanner stopped when Bud Erwin ran up with his hand on his pocket threatening to kill the first man who touched Tanner. Friends of was stopped.

The Kerr gave an excursion to Point Pleasant and back, and the Calhoon boys loaded up with pistols, knives and mean whisky, went up, taking Geo. Erwin along to do their fighting for them. They tried to raise it as soon as the boat started, but Capt. Williams and Geo, Ragan kept it down. Just as the boat whistled to land at the Calhoon wharf the Erwins finding Cain by himself raised a fuss, when Geo. Erwin jumped on him with brass-knucks, got in two licks on his head when he went down. Dan King landed one on Erwip's left eye and floored him, when Cain and he clinched. Hudson rushed out of the cabin and choked Erwin loose, who had got one of Cain's fingers in his mouth, Erwin then got out his pistol and fired five shots. The first one inflicting a slight flesh-wound in Hudson's left arm, A fruit-tree agent, from Greenville, received a painful wound in the left leg, supposed to be from Erwin's pietol, there were 5 or 6 shots fired.

Dr. Gates dressed the wounds. Geo. Erwin got a black eye, sore lips and his front teeth loose. Cain a bitten finger and a sore head. All doing well at last account. Geo. Erwin fired the first and last shot, Bud Erwin did the talking. Yours.

Breckenridge bar to draft resolutions concerning the death of Alfred Allen, deceased, reported as follows: This bar is called upon in the prudence of God, to mourn the death of one of its old and illustrious members. A man, who has occupied high and distinguished positions in State and Nation.

Col. Atlen was a man of good character, which placed him in the front rank, both in private life and official station. His integrity everywhere was unquestioned. His conscientiousness had the simplicity of a child and occupied the whole ground leaving no room whatever for evasion or doublemindedness. He was a complete stranger to duplicity or unfaithful-ness, the possibility of which was in no sense admissable to his own mind, nor found lodgment in the minds of others with reference to him. His brain power was of the first order, possessing the clearest conceptions and the modest comprehension of all subjects that engaged his attention. In whatever field he exercised his abilities he excelled, to a conspicuous degree, and wielded an influence that was commanding and compelled the admiration of all men.

A master of the chastest English, his speeches and writings were mod els of simplicity, purity and true elo-quence. Robust and massive in thought. The poetical term of his nature softened and made beautiful expressions. In a long life at the bar he won laurels that remains as a proud memento to his decendants. Col. Allen was not only a conscientious man, but he was an earnest man. His convictions were strong and deep. This was manifested in his religeous experience. He acknowledge his allegiance to his Creator, with the same simplicity and earnestness that marked him in all his characteristics.

He loved home and friends-kith and kin. His devotion to his native town and county, amounted almost to worship. None deserved so much, none, were entitled to more consideration in his estimation. The excel-lent character of Col. Allen is and shall be an inspiration to those younger than he. He was an honor to his town, county, state and country. He was always true and never faltered in his devotion to them. Social, companionable, entertaining, instructive. We miss him in our circle, but we have the many splendid features of his life and character to remember and to emitate.
